

Dear Colleagues,

Premier Daniel Andrews announced a new permit system for all domestic travel into Victoria, which came into effect last night.

It's based on a 'traffic light' system, allowing areas across Australia to be designated as green, orange or red, according to their risk. This means that travellers to Victoria and residents of Victoria returning home now need to apply for a permit before entering the state.

Please consider this requirement if you are planning to travel outside of Victoria for annual leave, as you will be unable to access paid sick leave or the Epidemic/Pandemic Special Leave should you be required to await a permit for re-entry or to self-isolate on your return.

If you have any queries or concerns, please reach out to your one-up leader for advice.

We urge colleagues, as always, to follow all official public health guidance and regulations, including around travel.

This continues to be a challenging time – so please remember that support is always available.
